

Donna Marie Miller

September 27, 1951 - December 31, 2025

Born on September 27, 1951, in Toronto, Ontario, Donna was raised in the Regent Park neighborhood, where her strong personality and independent spirit were evident from an early age. Many years later, she ventured west to Edmonton, Alberta, which became her home for the remainder of her life.

Donna was one of nine children born to Lucille and Francis MacDonald. She was a devoted mother to three children and a proud grandmother to five grandchildren.

Music was one of Donna's greatest passions. Her love for it was legendary, highlighted by a much-told story from her youth: at age 16, she attended a Jimi Hendrix concert and made such an enthusiastic impression that she was escorted out—an incident memorable enough to be recorded and later mentioned in The Village Voice. It was a story she carried with humor and pride, perfectly capturing her bold and fearless nature.

Donna also had a deep love for cats and found peace and comfort in nature. These quiet joys reflected the softer side of a woman known for her intensity, warmth, and unmistakable presence.

Donna will be remembered for her strong spirit, her love of music, her affection for animals, and the lasting mark she left on all who knew her.

Tribute Wall

CO

“ Just found out about my beautiful friend. I have known Donna for 52 years. Lots of journeys and memories. I will miss you my friend. Sorry we won't have our get together this year In person, but we will in my heart. 🤔🤔😊😊😊🙏🙏🙏

---

Carl Outram - April 12 at 08:14 AM

BL

“ Becky Lightfoot lit a candle in memory of Donna Marie Miller

---

Becky Lightfoot - January 16 at 01:21 PM